

The Girl is a Writer

She doesn't always feel like one
She doesn't always feel comfortable telling others
Because of the way the world labels writers.
Sometimes she feels silly saying that's what she wants to do,
For her purpose in life to be writing.
It's because she sees words unlike others do.
It's true that she doesn't always want them nearby,
She sees how they can have an impact on others though
She wants words on her side
She wants her life and soul to be soaked with words
She loves them.
Words swirl in her mind
They humor her, comfort her
It's hard to explain that to anyone
Now she's got to remember,
It's alright when others react differently
To her future with words
Because she's one of the few where
Words fit right into her journey.
The journey of a writer.
The Girl is a Writer.

Allie Hostettler

Honorable Mention - Teen Group